

Donald John Trump, an interesting fela. He is the president of the United States for the second time, and he has done some interesting things. I don't really like him, and these are going to be my reasons why I don't like him.

Past Behaviour

People might argue that his past behaviour doesn't matter, and one must only look at his present behaviour. This is because because people change like the tides in the ocean, and to judge them for who they were could prove to be a mistake.

This is a fair argument, however it is also fair to assume that there is also a chance he didn't really change that much. And if that is the case, then I am kind of worried. Because in the past Donald has said a lot of disrespectful stuff about a lot of people, and if these are still his true beliefs that could be troubling. For example when he said "I don't even wait. And when you're a star, they let you do it. You can do anything. ... Grab 'em by the pussy. You can do anything"

That is just... D: So yeah, he could have changed, he could have had some cool character development where now he respects women and doesn't believe that you can just grab them by the no-no square zone. But given that there was a civil case where he was held liable for Sexual Assault, and the way he continues to speak of women as less, and the fact that like 28 other women have said that he did bad stuff, and that he has had relationships with Epstein, it's just kind of improbable.

So that's my first point, he has said and done some bad stuff in the past, but what is wrong with him in the present?????

DOGE

So one of the first things Donald did was collaborate with Elon to create the Department of Government Efficiency. It was meant to do some Milei-Style cutting of some useless governmental boddies. The idea is great, but taking a look at the execution, there are problems. The first problem is that there were some clear ideological biases, they seemed to target anything that had any DEI Terms such as "Trans" or "Diversity". There is evidence to support this

- They cut funding to the NHS into research that mentioned "Auditive Diversity" which just means the subtly differences in hearing people have. This cut also included grants from the same branch that studied how to help people that suffer from hearing problems

- USAID programs were cut because they had the word "Equity", but it had nothing to do with the "Equity" that the woke people use. Apparently financial equity is an economics term. I wouldn't know I didn't do economics, and the DOGE clearly didn't do economics either.

- "Inclusion" and "Accessibility" in keywords in Education and Training related grants also seemed to be targeted. In total 373 Million dollars were cut from the department of education. Inclusion and accesibility are very important in the context of education. For people with disabilities like ADHD or Dislexya or Autism.

So they cut stuff that had DEI terms even though they might not have had anything to do with DEI. But furthermore, DEI is not bad in and of itself. It's meant to prevent discrimination from playing a factor when it comes to hiring people. You could argue that if done incorrectly, it can lead to minorities having an advantage, but that doesn't mean anything DEI should be eradicated only monitored or better managed.

Also they claim that they saved like 215 Billion dollars but everyone basically knows that number is a lie. The American Enterprise Institute thinks the numbers are kinda fake. The argument against this would be that despite sources proving otherwise, the number isn't fake and the government did sincerely cut a lot of programs off and save that amount of money. But given the fact that they cut off some actually resonable research programs with absolutely no evidence of them being a waste of money, I would still call this a fail. However studies do show that they did cut off some billions of dollars at least, so I guess this one is kinda subjective

Tarrifs

I know it's kind of unfair to preface this section with this fact. But I know nothing about econ so According to STANFORD UNIVERSITY, 93% of economists disagree with Donald's decision to bombard so many countries with so many tariffs like this.

Economist Paul Krugman says that tariffs act essentially as a tax on American people. To quote "a tariff is basically a selective sales tax — foreigners do not pay it, whatever Trump may say. U.S. consumers pay it" - Paul Krugman

According to Yale, the tariffs were significantly more negative for lower income households "The price level from the April 2nd announcement alone rises by 1.3% in the short run, the equivalent of an average per household consumer loss of $2,100 in 2024$. Annual losses for households at the bottom of the income distribution are $980 under the April 2nd policy alone." - Yale's Budget Lab

Now I know what you are thinking, I'm quoting too much without doing my own analysis. That's because I never took a class in economics in my life. I have no idea what financial equity even is. So all I can do is trust on these economists and hope that what they say is true. But now I'm in the future. So was it true????

It turns out that the taxes didn't impact the economy as negatively as most economists thought, but they claim that this was because Donald mostly backed off the more extreme tariffs.

Also, a little story, my father sells organic goods to the US, and while Donald was on his whole Tariff arc, he was rendered completely discombobulated. Because even if Donald's tariffs were a good idea, his execution was terrible, he would announce tariffs one day, change them the other, completely cancel them in some cases. My father was changing his plans all the time, and I imagine other corporations had the same issues. It was all very disorganised and messy. I basically fucked with the efficiency of the whole process, and I imagine this happened for every other importing good organisation aswell.

Not to mention that Donald used tariffs basically as bargaining chips for other political purposes. I just think Donald went a little crazy with the tariffs for no particular reason, and he overall un-stabilised the entire world because everyone was so uncertain of what he was and wasn't going to do. Still I'll only count this as a half-claim because even though everyone i've talked to about this agrees that the tariffs were done badly or they were a bad idea in and of itself, i still don't know much about economy. There is also a theory that Donald was intentionally manipulating the market to make money for him and his rich friends who had insider information and stuff but I don't know about that. It's just a theory.

ICE

So that's the whole other thing. The RIGHT WING seems to have this narrative that the feckin immigrants come to the countries and they fuck everything up. They decrease demand for minimum-wage jobs, thus kinda decreasing the minimum wage, and they also increase crime because most immigrants are poor and evil and they steal and murder

Thus Donald's main campaign was that he was going to deport evil violent immigrants that ruin society and commit crime. So he funded the shit out of ICE and now ICE is literally going on about arresting people and sending them to detention centers and deporting them, and occasionally killing random people.

Okay but now let's look at the D-tails of this whole thing. One of my friends once told me that per-capita, immigrants committed more crimes in the US than the general population. I have no idea where he got the info from though. Because according to the studies i've skimmed, that is not the case. The main conclusion of the studies are that Undocumented Immigrants do NOT increase the amount of Violence/Violent Crimes(murder, rape, torture) in the US. I hate it when articles just say "Oh according to the studies" yeah no shit, what studies????? So here are the studies I'm referring to

Comparing crime rates between undocumented immigrants, legal immigrants, and native-born US citizens in Texas Michael T. Light¹, J. J. Haggerty¹, and Jason P. Raboy¹ ¹Department of Sociology, University of Wisconsin-Madison, Madison, WI 53706 *Submitted by Douglas S. Mooney, Princeton University, Princeton, NJ, and approved October 5, 2020 (received for review July 13, 2020)	DOES UNDOCUMENTED IMMIGRATION INCREASE VIOLENT CRIME? MICHAEL T. LIGHT¹ and TY MILLER² ¹Department of Sociology, University of Wisconsin—Madison ²Department of Sociology, Purdue University
Immigration, Criminal Involvement, and Violence in the U.S.: Results from the National Epidemiologic Survey on Alcohol and Related Conditions-III Kelly E. Moore, PhD¹, Theodore Iliyanachio, MD², Brian P. Pittman, MS³, Sherry A. McKee, PhD⁴, Charles Dike, MD⁵ ¹Department of Psychology, East Tennessee State University, Johnson City, TN, US ²Division of Law and Psychiatry, Division of Substance Abuse, Department of Psychiatry, Yale University School of Medicine, New Haven, CT, US	LAW-ABIDING IMMIGRANTS: THE INCARCERATION GAP BETWEEN IMMIGRANTS AND THE US-BORN, 1870–2020 Ran Abramitzky Leah Pien Boustan Elisa Jacome Santiago Pérez Juan David Torres Working Paper 31440 http://www.aletor.org/papers/w31440
	NATIONAL BUREAU OF ECONOMIC RESEARCH 1050 Massachusetts Avenue Cambridge, MA 02138 July 2023. Revised March 2024

If you search those up in google you can find them, they are all publicly accessible. I love it when NHS just gives you these studies for free instead of locking them behind a payroll.

The NBER study actually says that immigrants are 60% less likely to commit crimes!!!

And the other papers agree that increases in undocumented population do not have a significant correlation with increases in violent crimes. So this basically disproves the entire narrative that immigrants are evil people that will rape your dog or whatever. That is, unless I just happened to look at the only 4 studies that are actually all completely fake and made up. Which would be a real shame.

But regardless of this narrative being wrong, Donald's execution of this whole ordeal, was also un-ideally bad. Basically, the constitution says that even if you are illegal, you can't be deported without a trial. While waiting for a trial, you have to wait in this DETENTION CENTER, which is basically a JAIL.

Donald created an enviornment where it's very easy to detain someone using the forbidden tactic of Racial Profiling. A judge called Jerry W Blackwell affirms that most ICE detainees have been legal, law abiding citizens that shouldn't have been detained in the first place. This stuff would be bad enough if it was occasional, but apparently it is really common for ICE to detain completely innocent people.

Even worst than this, for some reason, even after judges order the release of innocent individuals, in many cases ICE delays the release for days weeks or months.

Judge Blackwell said this cool quote that I agree with "What you can't do is detain first and sort out later" - Blackwell

A judge called Brett Kavanaugh argued in a concurrence that ethnicity can be considered a "relevant factor" for detaining someone suspicious. Therefore the DHS came up with the term "Kavanaugh Stops" for the types of stops that are basically just Racial Profiling.

Also it's safe to say that the conditions of the detention centers are sub-optimal at best. And down-right concentration-camp-ish at worst. Sometimes people that were legally in the US chose to get deported by ICE only to escape the harsh conditions of the detention centers.

So a lot of people disagree with ICE because of their kinda racistish and violentish behaviour towards immigrants. Thus ICE has become less popular and many people quit ICE in protest. This prompted the government to basically lower the standards for who can and can't join ICE. They basically shortened the training period and made it unnecessary to speak spanish to some extent, which used to be a necessity since most undocumented immigrants are mexican.

This is obviously worrying because police training is absolutely essential for forfending situations where some random individual gets illegally detained. A lack of training can also get you some dangerous situation that lead up to unnecessary deaths. Such is the case with Renne Good and Alex Pretti.

Worst of all, the Donald's Administration didn't immediately condemn the killings of Good and Pretti. They didn't immediately dismiss this as an unfortunate isolated event that shouldn't have happened, and they didn't take responsibility. Instead they put the blame mostly on Good and Pretti because they shouldn't have been there and because they were "Domestic Terrorists"???????? I will admit that they did put themselves in a rather risky situation, but cops should not use LETHAL FORCE unless it's necessary to prevent death or serious injury, that's why I believe that the cops are the ones that carry the responsibility for the safety of these citizens.

There was literally nothing to gain in these situation from the usage of lethal force. It behooved absolutely no one to pull out a gun, let alone shoot it, in both of these scenarios. And any properly trained Police officer with basic police training would know that. However ICE seems to be lacking in this department, which leads to more unreasonable detentions, searches and seizures, and occasional unnecessary deaths.

In conclusion, nothing about ICE makes sense to me. If most of the crimes don't come from immigrants, then the government should not focus on the immigrants, they should instead improve the normal police and go after the native criminals.

But given that this was in Donald's campaign, and people actually voted for him to decrease the amount of illegal immigrants, he kinda had an obligation to do this. But even then, he did a terrible job, by causing the unlawful detention of thousands of people. He put a lot of people in terrible situations because of his poor management skills. In contrast, Obama did all of this very clearly, no unlawful detentions or killings of American Citizens happened. Which is why Obama isn't seen as an evil deporter like Trump even though Obama deported more people.

Also the whole thing with Kilmar Abergo Garcia where he was detained a billion times and Donald's Administration sent him to el Salvador, but then brought him back, and then they tried sending him to Africa, but like Judges were like "you can't do that bro" and after a long and arduous legal and apparently political battle, bro finally was free.

And the best part is that on Febuary of 2026 a judge ruled that ICE is no longer allowed to detain him which is the funniest shit ever.

Honourable Mentions

Now that I have gone through what I believe has been some pretty solidly objective reasons as to why I don't like mr Donald over here, I will go through some less-well-researched reasons. Reasons that I am perfectly fine for people to disagree with, and I am open to somewhat changing my mind/stance on

-Israel V Palestine: Donald has been an avid supporter of Benjamin I personally think that Benji's administration killed a little too many innocent lives, more than what they should have been okay with. Like, I wouldn't kill any innocent life, but I understand that under the circumstances presented, maybe Benji had the idea that causing the death of palestinian innocent lives was better than risking the death of Israeli innocent lives, mainly because killing innocent lives, according to Benji, is a necessary sacrifice for also causing the death of Hamas members, thus saving the aforementioned Israeli lives. But with a 50% civilian casualty rate, and also the fact that they killed more than 5 times the people that hamas killed, it just seems kind of unjustifiable to support. Even if the heart was in the right place, I think that the execution was overly brutal, therefore I chose to support anyone that opposes this unnecessary violence. These being the protestors against Hamas, against Benjamin, and by Proxy against Donald Trump

-Ukraine vs Russia: I put this here because one of my very smart and trusted individuals that currently resides in the United States of America once told me that in Biden's administration, the Ukraine and Russia conflict was nearing it's end, however Donald came along and fucked it up. Given that this conflict is still going, I have reason to believe that Donald hasn't been doing a very good job. But that's why I am still open to discussion, because I have only heard about this from once source, given that he is a very smart and succesfull entrepreneur with a lot of financial and political influence who is very well educated on subjects and stuff, I refer to him as THE BLACK ONE, but yeah, it's still only one source, prone to be extremely biased.

-I don't like how he often lies/exaggerates things in his speeches for theatrical purposes. And pretends to be this know-it-all genius that everyone praises. "You know, no one knows more about [Blank] than me, ask anything you want about [Blank] and I'll tell you, I am an expert" and that sort of balloney he usually throws. He also claimed to be capable of beating an olympic swimmer in a race, just because the olympic swimmer was a woman????? Like brosky, mr Donny, my guy, brovation, You damned mothrfuckin individual, come.....on.

OBJECTIVE CLAIM OUT OF NOWHERE
Trump revokes EPA finding on greenhouse gas threat in huge blow to climate change regulations

This is probably the biggest issue we are facing as a species right now, like the ultimate battle for/against humanity. And bro somehow revokes a finding???????????????????????????????????? How does one revoke a finding?? This shit has been so rigorously proven, it's goddamn unassailable, the fact that greenhouse gasses are bad. And I haven't looked into it, but I am so goddman sure that Donald didn't provide any scientific counter or analysis to revoke this finding, he just revoked it because apparently the whole she'bang of science having to be empirical so that it can always approach the truth as closely as possible and all the scientific studies having to always be subjected to some extremely mad rigors in order to make sure that the stuff is not tainted by bias or human subjectivity means jack shit when its injected into politics because a blonde guy with brain issues can just revoke a fucking fact, which allows the feckin organisations to polute and basically ignore the fact that sometimes making energy with fossil fuels is bad, and thus kill the planet faster than what it's already being killed

This is by far the most illogical and indefensible thing Donald has ever done in my opinion, I get that the guy believes that this whole thing is a hoax and that the climate is actually not changing at all and that the woke left is just using it as an excuse to waste the money of the government, money that could otherwise be spent in more pertinent issues like deporting people who statistically do less crime than the native population, buying underage girls from a sex trafficking ring, and more importantly- creating weapons designed to end lives. Love the use of the money here.

I got a little carried away there with the subjectivity, obviously he isn't doing terrible stuff on purpose. It's a little worrying how Donald once said that he would never go to heaven no matter what he did. It's just that the guy doesn't even give off good guy vibes. And I really don't like his opinion on women and how they are like worst than men. Even though he isn't as disrespectful to women as he used to be, I still don't get the feeling any thing change, I feel like instead he just hides it better. Plus I heard he pardoned a lot of bad people, and yeah, just overall yeah.

So that was it, those are my objective reasons I don't like Donald. mainly because he is kind of discriminatory towards women and because all of his actions, even if assuming that they were a good idea in the first place, were terribly executed. And given that he is currently in the position of the EXECUTIVE BRANCH of the US, I would say that is his most important job, and he failed. Also he didn't get congressional approval to start a war with Iran but now this shi is getting too long so time to wrap it up

Extra Add ons

So I made this document a long time ago, and now I will just be adding to this list some things that Trump has done wich don't make sense to me or are in any way wrong. I will mark these things as subjective and objective.

-Entering a war with Iran (28/02/2026) SUBJECTIVE

So first Trump gets rid of the deal that Obama made with Iran. The deal that said that Iran was allowed to have Uranium as long as it was always vigilated and all Uranium facilities were subject to yearly inspections. In exchange, the US would take away the sanctions they had put on Iran and everyone would be happy.

Then Trump came along, claiming that this deal was dumb and stupid because it allowed the Iranians to have Nukes and now they don't have sanctions so they have more money which they can use to fund terrorist groups. How true is this?? It's hard to tell. Regardless, Trump said "the deal's off" and he re-imposed tariffs on Iran. Then Iran as retaliation created Uranium enriched to 60% while also not allowing inspections anymore. Then the US and Israel got extremely mad and started bombing the shit out of Iran.

Now I don't really agree with Iran's retaliatory enrichment of Uranium at all, but it makes sense. The deal was no sanctions, no highly enriched Uranium(and also mass surveillance of all Uranium) Trump decided to no longer hold that deal because of his suspicions that Iran was making a bomb. This is something that Netanyahu also fears, he has been claiming that Iran is 2 weeks away from making a nuke for like about two decades.

Also, enriching Uranium to 60% is not useful for weapons, but it does tell you that they are capable of enriching Uranium to some weapons-grade percentage. So I guess Iran tried to get that message out. Still, I don't like the idea of playing around with Uranium and using it as a bargaining chip. I respect Nuclear Energy a lot, and I am all for Iran having it's nuclear power plants. But to threat creating Nuclear Weapons is crazy. That being said, I don't agree with the existence of Nukes in the first place, and the fact that the US and Israel (two countries that have nukes) is preventing Iran from having nukes is something I find highly hypocritical, even though it's the right thing to do since the last thing we need is another country with nukes.

But as far as my beliefs go, I don't think Iran wasn't respecting Obama's deal, and thus it shouldn't have been terminated in the first place. But there is no way to prove myself concretely right or wrong, that's why this one is subjective.

-Posting AI Memes (a lot of times, but today it was 13/04/2026) OBJECTIVE

Talking about Iran (Who has also gone in a rampage of posting shitty stupid lego AI propaganda), Trump has been known in twitter for posting a lot of ridiculous AI shit. Last time this AI stuff caused him any trouble was in 05/02/2026 when he posted on his version of twitter a video depicting former president Obama as an ape. This time, today (13/04/2026) he posted a picture of himself depicted as Jesus which was problematic to a lot of his christian fanbase since it can very easily be considered heretical to depict ones' self as god.

I disagree with this first because of the use of AI, and second because all of his AI ""Art"" seems to be in bad taste, proving to me he hasn't really changed and he still has some bad beliefs. With the Obama-ape post, he claimed he didn't post it, just a social media manager doing some dumb stuff. I don't believe that, I think he was just using his PR team as a scape-goat. But this time he publicly declared he did willingly post that himself.

-[Follow Up] Using Christianity for Profit (A lot of times) OBJECTIVE

He does use Christianity for profit, which is strictly Heretical to do. This is why any christian that follows Trump isn't really paying a lot of attention in my opinion. Bro sells Trump-Bibles for a profit, which is just a bible that has his signature. Normally pastors and priests sign bibles for kids you know? people with actual religious authority???? They do it for free tho, not for profit. Jesus literally has a story in the bible where he kicks out any god-related merch-sellers out of the church. The bible literally condemns this type of greed. I guess if you follow christianity then this shouldn't bother you unless you think using other's personal beliefs to satisfy your personal greed is an okay thing to do.

-DOGE - Objective

Basically the NEH started a lawsuit because DOGE terminated funds to a documentary about what the female holocaust survivors endured. It was too "DEI" for the government. Some deposition tapes reveal that Mike Cavanaugh was using ChatGPT4.5 to essentially decide weather or not a project would get funding from the government.

-Trump phone - Subjective

So Moist Critical has been insisting about the stupid ass "American Made" Trump phone that never got sent to him. I hadn't included it here because of how much of an obvious scam it is, but even if it's obvious. It still shouldn't like happen. The ToS says that they will refund anyone who doesn't receive it. So I guess that's good, kinda dumb but still good